Doorstep Donations Executive Summary

Doorstep Donations is a nonprofit organization committed to serving underprivileged and food-insecure families. Our mission is to support our suffering neighbors, as well as to inspire and empower youth to solve food crises within their communities. Doorstep Donations' Postmates-like service model allows contributors to donate from the safety of their homes by leaving food donations on their doorsteps.

Doorstep Donations was founded by high schoolers Ben Gleeman, Jonah Gleeman, and Ryan Spiegel. All three live and attend school in New York City. The trio started Doorstep Donations to serve their community as well as to mitigate the disastrous food crisis in the New York area caused by COVID-19. Though COVID-19 catalyzed Doorstep Donations, the service will remain viable long after the virus because of its simple and efficient model.

Since its inception, Doorstep Donations has become a registered 501(c)(3) organization with over 16 locations in North America. Doorstep Donations has served over 40,000 meals and accumulated over $50,000 in monetary donations.

Doorstep Donations is an ever-expanding organization, always looking for new and creative methods to source food and funding. Doorstep Donation's Bag Program enables donors to easily give nonperishable food on a recurring basis. After signing up, patrons receive a Doorstep Donations bag. Every two months, donors fill the bag with nonperishable food and put it outside of their doors to be collected. Doorstep Donations aims to empower youth to speak up and use their creativity to solve food crises within their communities.
